DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Masuzawa et al. (US 5,821,710) in view of Sebastian et al. (US 5,982,067).

Masuzawa et al. disclose in Figures 1A, 1B, 8B and 8C a permanent magnet motor having a stator 1 with a plurality of stator teeth, and a rotor 2 being a cylindrical permanent magnet 31, 32, 121, 132 having magnetically anisotropic orientation in a radial direction (See Figure 8B) magnetized with a plurality of evenly disposed magnetic poles wherein the number of the magnetic poles  $k=6$  being an even number not exceeding 100 and the number of stator teeth  $n=12=3 \times (n_0=4)$  and wherein  $n_0$  being a positive integer not exceeding 33, and  $k$  being not equal to  $n_0$ . However, Masuzawa et al. does not disclose the stator having skewed teeth.

Sebastian et al. discloses in Figure 4 a permanent magnet motor having a stator 64 with a plurality of stator teeth skewed by one slot pitch for the purpose of reducing the torque ripple.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to design the motor as taught by Masuzawa et al. And to provide the stator having skewed teeth as taught by Sebastian et al. for the purpose of reducing the torque ripple.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 2 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Prior Art

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
